

MISSION FACTS

In Central Asia, a four-year old congregation in Uzbekistan has 3,000 members and has planted 55 other congregations.

HEART CHECK

Think about the people that are often written off – too old, too young. How could you encourage them, that God can still use them? What throwaways do you know, that God may be wanting to use? Why don't you convene them? The role of an encourager is so important. Who can you encourage? What can you do to help someone else be all God called them to be – a call, a letter, an offering, a partnership? Develop a plan to encourage two others to be all they can be in God. Find someone with a dream, a desire to make a difference, and just be a positive friend to them.

THE MANDATE

"I, John, both your brother and companion in the tribulation and kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was on the island that is called Patmos for the Word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Rev. 1:10).

THE MEDITATION

I cannot imagine John having any regrets. The last apostle, exiled to the desolate island used by Rome as a dumping ground for undesirables. No doubt, he had heard rumblings about how every fellow disciple had died. And for him, he was now at the end as well. Then suddenly, in that unlikely place, heaven broke in. Christ himself appeared. A voice spoke like a trumpet. From between the blazing candlesticks he heard, "I am Alpha and Omega." In the next few days, revelation would pour forth. John gave us a view of the triumphant lamb.

I can hardly imagine how he felt. The boat dumped him on that island and sailed away. Since he had met you, his life had been an amazing ride. Now, the last of the twelve, he was facing a quiet ending. But you were not ready for him to retire. Heaven would open. Secrets would be unwrapped, mysteries expounded. Through him, the final revelation would come to the church.

Just when we think you are finished with us, you may be preparing us for our greatest work. When others have written us off, some among us may be approaching their finest hour. When we are banished from some spotlight, on some heaven's floodlights are about to shine. When the powers that be render us powerless, you may give our most powerful insights. May we refuse to despair. Refuse to allow someone or something to "end our ministry." May we not concede defeat at some Patmos. You can use anyone, anywhere, anytime who is ready to yield to you. Lord, let me live fully every day, until I live my very last day, always available to you!

Pray for the Harvest one Sunday a month.
